Sanitation of Indian Affairs.

We perceive, with pleasure, by our eastern dispatches, that so far as the military division of the Northwest is concerned, steps have been taken to remove the control of Indian affairs out of the hands of the Secretary of the Interior, and place it in those of the military, where it properly belongs. No sensible man, at all familiar with the workings of the present iniquitous system, can doubt that such a change would prove beneficial to all parties concerned. As now managed, the Indian Department is a perfect incubus, accomplishes no good to those intended to be benefited, but, on the contrary, as generally conducted, belies the generosity of the Government by swindling the objects of its bounty and care in the most outrageous manner. The pervading rottenness of the officers of this bureau is proverbial all through the Territories and the Pacific States, and in the popular estimation, except in individual cases, to be an Indian agent is to be something akin to a swindler—the terms have become very nearly synonymous.

The theory which gave rise to the present system may be everything that was desirable, could its management only be entrusted always to honest agents, but such are not invariably selected—the reverse indeed seems to be the rule, with just a sufficient number of exceptions to prove it is a rule—and the result is, that in practice, the whole thing is found entirely inadequate, and unsound. It is a well known fact in California, that, so far from improving, civilizing or benefiting the Indians in any appreciable manner or degree, the agencies have been the direct means, by their outrages and oppressions upon the savages, of bringing on the most bitter and inappreciable hostilities between them and the settlers.

Dishonestly deprived by villainous agents of the bounties provided for them by the Government, the Indians are forced to seek relief by begging of citizens, or by application at military posts, where such are established, the force generally ending in their becoming thoroughly disgusted and resorting to force to obtain that which they were promised, but seldom received, as the reward of a peaceful disposition. Then the military is called in to bring the wronged and restless bands again under the benevolent control of their oppressors; new treaties and new promises are made, only to be again broken; and so the miserable sham continues as long as circumstances allow, or any red-ink remain to be plundered.

We believe it to be nearer a matter of absolute fact than many suspect, that the Indians actually receive more in the way of sustenance at the hands of the military than from the agents of the department, which annually demand from Congress immense appropriations ostensibly for their benefit, but really to furnish perquisites and salaries for useless agents in an asylum for broken down political hacks, who cling like leeches to more successful partisans, until disposed by banishment in some such manner, when their office is a semi-curse and the opportunities for blood-seeking equal to their appetite. They are like barnacles clinging to a ship, that is unworthy—the whole system is rotten and should be broken up. It would save the Government millions every year to obliterate the Indian bureau as now conducted, transferring the distribution of Indian funds to the hands of the military, by whom it could be done without a dollar additional expense and much more to the benefit of all concerned. Looking then to the same source for kindness, if deserved, and prompt chastisement when necessary, the Indians would be held under a degree of subjection impossible to be attained or made effective as matters now stand. For all these and other reasons, then, we are glad to see that General Pope, assisted no doubt by others, is about to inaugurate a necessary change.

More of the Port Neuf Murders.

We have learned long particulars about the massacre, from parties who passed along the route soon after the occurrence, but, on advisement, it is deemed more discreet to keep them out of print, just yet a while. Suffice it to say, that seven out of that gang of fourteen or twenty, who infested that line of road since the 8th of July, saying they were in want of work, or on their way to this and that place, from the Boise country, were killed, marked and being watched, pursued and looked for, in more sections than one, and that by forces fully able and experienced to find them out. Their names, their residence, their description, their destinations, and the other circumstances, conversations, &c., that are setting to determine of them, is indiscreet to publish here, at present. Whether they divided and scattered, some to Sulphur, some to Cech Valley, or some to this, that and the other section, will be learned before very long. Everything will be effected at Virginia City and elsewhere to further pursuit and capture.

The details of the attack upon the coach &c., as now received, are different in minor matters to those first published, but not materially so. The wounded driver, Chas. Parks is still suffering, and considered hopeless. C. F. Carpenter escaped with three slight wounds. Jas. Brown (of Boise) escaped unhurt. The party were afraid that their coach would be attacked, while coming along from Balmack to this Canon, seeing one of these suspicious fellows spilling them along the road. The robbers jumped out of the willows, and attacked the coach on the rear, and fired into it on both sides, as A. S. Parker chanced to see them first and say, "Robbers, boys, fire!" W. L. Moss (being on the driver's box,) and David Dinan fell dead instantly. A. J. McCausland lived a few minutes, only saying, "God have mercy on my soul!" After firing, Parker jumped out of the stage, and was shot; after which the robbers dragged him by the hair of the head across the road, and shot him again. The driver, Frank Jennings escaped a bullet by leaning aside and letting it enter the lamp, as Moss fell out of the box. Brown (of Boise) also escaped out of the coach unhurt, and, amid volleys of buckshot and rifle bullets, reached the thicket, to afterwards hide behind a cliff, until the party left the scene.

Dinan and McCausland falling to die, over Carpenter—inside the stage—fortunately gave the latter his ghost of a chance to "play dead," and thus live to corroborate what Brown, Parks and the driver tell about the whole affair. Dinan's body had sixty-one buckshot in his breast, one in left shoulder blade, one in the right temple, two in left arm, and one across the lower jaw. The others received less, as their share, but a sufficiency to kill them almost instantly. On the right side of the coach, there were thirty-three shots fired, (from the west,) twenty-one from the opposite side, fourteen from the rear and seven from the front. The intention was to kill all the party, but seeing one (Brown) had escaped, the robbers didn't "finish" Carpenter, Parks and the driver, as they otherwise would have done, after getting all the plunder that the parties had. Dinan and Carpenter had twenty-three thousand dollars worth of dust, and Parker and the others must have lost full forty thousand dollars altogether. Mr. Gibson and Phil Rogers, at the station, assisted all they could, to help the friends of the deceased in the decent burial of the bodies on the hill about two hundred yards above the station-house. The effects of the deceased, clothing &c., are in Mr. Gibson's possession. One of the robbers was wounded, and it is hoped fatally enough to aid some—if not killed by his partners—in the direction taken by the gang. The watch, lat and vest, of the leader was picked up, near the spring where they un-blacked their faces. A more foul and merciless massacre has not heretofore been heard of on this road. But we have faith the fiends will be followed up, and this state of things "finished."

To those who make furnaces of their mouths and chimneys of their throats by the aid of tobacco, we are enabled to impart the gratifying intelligence that Central contains no less than six regularly established cigar houses, where the choicest brands from Havana are daily served up at moderate rates. Here, too, are the varieties of the weed well shown up, in long plugs, old plugs, new plugs, pig-tail and dog-leg, from Lisbon and Paris, (Mo.) New York City is not as well supplied in the tobacco trade, proportionately, as our own little village in the hills.—Central City, Col., Miners' Register.

Markets and Monetary.

DAILY MARKET REPORT,
July 21, 1893.

But few changes have taken place in money matters since our last report, and we have, in consequence, been very light in our commercial report. Our patrons will understand that when changes are not noticed, none of importance have taken place. Gold dust sells more freely than it has for any time during the past two months. Parties who have been holding, expecting an advance, are now convinced that no material change will take place; and as opportunities offer for investment, they "bring out the dust." Prices remain about the same as last reported. We quote Gold Coin $1.25; Virginia Dust $24 for currency and $16 for coin. But very little Boise Dust has been offered in this market as yet—our Bankers are paying $17.50 currency for it. The scarcity of currency here, at present, is severely felt by all parties, most transactions having to be made in exchange. Indeed, we heard the remark made that there was not ten thousand dollars in greenbacks in Great Salt Lake City at this present day. But, of course, that was but the flourish of some fellow who was only "figuratively speaking." As soon as the coaches get to coming from the eastward daily, there will be treasury notes in plenty. Gold coin in New York has not varied anything to speak of for a fortnight. It has ranged from 1.35 to 1.40 for the last ten days. Some of our bankers are shipping their dust to New York via San Francisco, not knowing when the communication will be open overland. The product of our Utah mining camps, the Rush Valley silver mines, Bingham Canon, and several other points where gold and silver sleeps for want of men, machinery and enterprise, backed by capital, to develop them, are comparatively light; but the day is not distant when operations in Utah mining will be interesting and extensive.

For a few weeks past the merchandizing business here has not been very brisk, considering the season. Indeed, in popular parlance, business has been slow—light—dull, that is to say, in the jobbing line. The state of the harvest has not allowed the merchants from the Utah towns and cities to come in, as yet, and the season has not arrived for merchants and speculators, from the mining Territories north, to come down to make their purchases of flour &c., for the fall and winter. Neither has the bulk of the season's immigration from the plains reached here as yet, nor but a tithe of the trains of goods belonging to adventures and to our own merchants. Of the six or ten large houses here, only a comparatively few have received even the one-fourth of their last season's purchases in the States. At least one thousand wagons, with general merchandise for our city firms, are yet to arrive, and expected during the ensuing month. Gilbert, Walker, Gurney, Siegel, Heiler & Snyder, Kline & Lavin Hamilton & Co., Bodenbush & Kahn, and a few others received an earnest only of their goods as yet. Geo. Marshall and Bob Willard, from Council Bluffs, Mr. Cornforth and Mr. Salsbury, from Denver, and a few smaller outfits with butter, bacon, lard, tobacco, notions &c., are all the trains that have arrived here yet. The bulk of this year's freight and immigration is strung along the road from Echo Canon to the Black Hills. When these or the major part arrive, business will revive and become booming.

However, a good home trade, retail, has been doing with the city folks and the farmers, particularly in the produce and barter business. Some adventurers who freighted stocks of general merchandise to this market the present season, finding the demand dull, (our dealers expecting their own stocks of similar goods to arrive at an early day,) become discouraged instantly and offered to sell out at ten per cent less than cost and freight! The same is happening and will continue to happen for months to come. Some parties and pilgrims bringing merchandise here on speculation think that if they don't find merchants and traders for the mines ready here to buy them out at big figures, they will be ruined for remain; and, then, some get well sick and offer to sell out at any figure. Those that buy, and those who store their goods, will double their money in the fall, while the other class will go homeward "busted" and "disgusted" with the idea of selling "rich" at Salt Lake City.

A good fall trade is anticipated by our me:chants.

Their stocks arriving are larger and of finer quality and assortment, particularly in dry goods and ladies' dress notions, than brought to this Territory heretofore.

Flour.—A good inquiry is making for this article, by home and distant speculators. We quote to-day at $10 per 100 lbs. and Tanner's "best," $11.
Bacon.—Selling at 55c. Thirty or forty tons expected here in trains tomorrow or next day. Hams, no large supply, but selling at 55 a 60c.
SUGAR.—Good supply. Jobbing at 55c for brown, and 60 a 62c for white.
COFFEE.—Big stock. Selling at 70c.
TEA.—Large stock in market. Sells from $2.50 to $3.50, according to quality.
CANDLES AND SOAP. Big stock of candles on sale. Good Star 60c.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Large supply, demand dull and prices low.
CLOTHING, HATS, &c.—Market glutted with this line of goods. In fact, a "three years supply" here, they say; consequently prices vary as you best can "catch 'em."
HARDWARE.—A good supply on hand, for the demand.
NAILS.—Big stock received. Selling at 40 cts.
COTTON.—Large lot in town: enough to let its light shine here all winter, at $3.50 per gallon.
CAN FRUITS.—But little of these goods imported to this "fruit country."
STARCH.—None but the Utah sorghum handled here, and sells at $2.00 a $3.00 per gallon, according to quality.
WINE.—No liquors or wines allowed to be sold or jobbed, by the present "powers that be." Consigners will do well to note this.

TOBACCO.—Full supplies for present demands. Fair article 1 25 a 1 50. Lewis's N. L. $1 75 a $2.00.
LARD.—Large stock on hand. No. 1 capped lard jobs at 50c.
BUTTER.—Fresh butter 50c.
DRY GOODS.—Domestic, staple and fancy dry goods are in fair supply for the demand. Stocks have remained over since last year, that are now rushing off quite low, to make room for new styles coming. The bulk of the dry goods purchases will be here by trains in a couple of weeks, after which the prices of staple and other articles will become established one way or another. A few outfits of dry goods have arrived already—some on adventure, which were bought (when gold was high,) at 34 and 36 cents for prints, which have to be rushed off, at present, at a third less than cost, in Salt Lake City.

The time for briskness here will not be for two months yet, said a merchant to us yesterday, who ought to know. Then, the "dust" will commence coming from the north, and flour trains starting thither. For this, the folks are doubtless showing their disposition to hold on to flour, &c., at present.
Freight, by ox or mule train, to Montana, ranges from 6 to 7 cts, and not much doing either way.
